Jane Hosman Zimmerman

My life has been relatively uneventful except for my three children and my career.

Two of my adult children attended college and both are successful and thriving. My youngest works and enjoys what she does. I have 10 grandchildren and 2 great grandchildren.

After working at a minimum wage job I decided to return to college once all three children were out the door and finished my degree. The next 45 years were spent as a health care executive at several hospitals in Washington where my expertise working with union negotiations kept me busy. The last large hospital I worked in had nine unions so I was negotiating all the time.

Work kept me pretty busy but I write as a hobby. I have written three books and am finishing three more. My last, a murder mystery I have high hopes of publishing. It takes place in the western states.

I have been retired for 11 years, cared for my older sister, Carole for six of those. I now live in Nampa working part time in Health Care trying to stay busy and healthy.

My love of my life is my miniature schnauzer puppy...a gift from a very close friend. He keeps me on my toes and healthy. I am so fortunate to be enjoying good health, a thriving and healthy family and a few long time friends.
